CALIFORNIA PROSPECTS. - The San Francis co Chronicle paints the following bright hued picture of California's prospects during the coming year: "In business, as in nature, the spring forecasts the year, and judging by present appearances an unusually favorable year awaits the farmer, the merchant, the artisan, the miner, and the manufacturer. The abundant rains of winter have almost placed the growing wheat crops beyond the risk of failure. The area of land sown is everywhere increased, in some places doubled, and the prospective yield is estimated at 30,000,000 centals, worth $60,000,-000. The rain has also benefited the miners, and a large increase in the yield of gold is anticipated. The spring trade over all portions of the State is opening with unusual promise. The number of country buyers from all parts of the coast is very large, and the demand for goods in San Francisco is active beyond precedent. A lively trade in teas with Chicago, St.

up since the beginning of the year, and coffees have been sent by our merchants as far as Philadelphia. Even rice is finding its way East over the railroad. The quantity of salmon packed this season will be fifty per cent. ahead of last year, and the manufacture of case goods for the Euglish and Eastern markets will show a similar development. The manufacture of boots and shoes will be much larger than last year, and many new enterprises, including a factory for the production of rubber goods, are about being started. Everywhere new buildings are springing up, and are being rented as fast as completed. Money is abundant, our import and export trade is large and flourishing, and

Louis, and other Eastern centres, has sprung

DEATH OF FREDDY COMBS. -The coroner of New York city was called on on Friday last to hold an inquest on the body of Freddy Coombs, who died at a tenement house in that city, aged 73 years, on Thursday evening. Old Freddy's quaint costume, the garb of a Revolutionary soldier, knee breeches, three cornered hat, large steel shoe buckles, and wearing long white hair hanging down over his shoulders, his handsome face, and happy smile will be remembered well by many who used to see him wandering through the streets, the corridors of the Capitol and Departments, and the aisles of the theaters in Washington and on King street in this city, trying to sell his books and photographs. He bore a striking resemblance to Benjamin Franklin, and claimed to be the inventor of the camera obscura, electric telegraph, and steam wagon; dressed in knee breeches, buckskin coat, and three cornered hat, and traveled from city to city vending his little wares. For some weeks last summer he held high carnival at the corner of Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue, showing his electrical apparatus. He was long a resident hat, and traveled from city to city vending his electrical apparatus. He was long a resident of California, where he was known to every one, and was always treated pleasantly and kindly. Mr. Coombs died of heart disease. He was born in Eugland.

THE MYSTERY OF THE DAUPIN,-A certain mystery has always shrouded the death of Louis XVI's miserable son. No chapter in the grim annals of the revolution is more revolting than that which records the slow torment by which the vulgar tyrants of the committee of public safety wore the life out of their wretched little prisoner. After being used most vilely as an instrument of mortal tortue against his happy mother, the boy was given over to the shoemaker Simon, and for months "lies perishing," says Carlyle, with a rather misplaced sarcasm, "amind squalor and darkness, lamentably, so as none but poor factory children and the like are wont to perish, and not to be lamented." In this misery, however, as all the world, believed at the time, the Dauphin did die, and the revolutionary government attempted to place the fact beyond dispute by drawing up formal and anthenticated documents certifying his death and burial. The rights of the House of Bourbon then passed to the brothers of Louis XVI-to the childless Comte de Province, afterward Louis XVIII, and to the Comte d'Arnois, who succeeded his brother as Charles X, and whose grandson, the posthumous son of the Duc de Berri, is now the object of Legitimist aspirations. -- London Times.

THE SLEEPING CAR MONOPOLY. - The Pullman Palace Car Company enjoy the monopoly of their special business on all the railroads of the United States and they are now extending their operations in Europe. Like all great monopolies they do many things not exactly fair to the public or their own employees. They employ upwards of one thousand conductors. and each of these is obliged to deposit the sum of one hundred dollars in cash, as security for the honest performance of his duty. On the aggregate amount, $100,000, the company pay no interest. This sum at six per cent. yields this immense monopoly a sum of $6,000 per year. The Pullman Car Company should remedy this, and be as just as the gas company monopolies of the country who pay seven per cent. on gas meter deposits. In the Legislature of Illinois a bill has just been introduced to prevent unjust discrimination and extortion by the Pullman Palace Car Company, and other companies running sleeping coaches on the railway lines in that State, and fix reasonable maximum rates for the same. The sleeping car arrangement, however, with their excellent attendance is a great boon to travelers on long journeys. - Balt. Sun.

DETERMINED ACTION .-- In Mount Vernon, Illinois, a Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by her sisterin-law, Mrs. Watson, went to a drug store the other day and demanded the prescription upon which, in consequence of a prohibitory law, her husband had been in the habit of obtaining liquor. The clerk refused to give it up, but advised her to go to the doctor who issued it and have him revoke it. Mrs. Wilson then told him that if he did not give up the prescription she would blow his brains out, at the same time presenting a pistol at his head. After considerable expostulation Mrs. Wilson was induced to call upon the doctor, where, with pistol drawn, she made him stand and deliver in true highwayman's style. With the revocation of the prescription in hand, the two women triumphantly returned to the drug store, and with pistol presented, threatened those present with summary vengeance if any more liquor was sold to Mr. Wilson.
